Program for January 16, 2007: Jim Drogue, Wisconsin Credit Union League, Real Solutions for consumers.

Notes from last meeting, January 9, 2007: Kristin Gilpatrick was born in Edgerton, Wis., to educators Robert and Barbara Gilpatrick. A Cedarburg High School alumna, she graduated from the University of Wisconsin-Eau Claire with a double major in journalism and Spanish, having studied a semester in Valladolid, Spain. In college, her life-long passion for writing and history blossomed into a love for telling stories of the "everyday" people who made history.

She put that passion to paper as a reporter for newspapers in Illinois and Wisconsin, winning nine press association awards along the way. From 1997-2001, she was an editor for the Credit Union Executives Society, Madison, Wis., and now works full time on her books.

Gilpatrick is also founder of Operation Freedom Appreciation in 2000, a program where she asks each American to thank at least one armed forces veteran a year.

Habitat Don N reported that the habitat house is ready for us; this Saturday, we're doing insulation; Shay and Ron will be there along with Don and Ted.

Happy/Sad Dollars:

- Lynn's biz partner going to Guatemala on med. mission as translator; Lynn has an 8-week old black lab puppy, Dizzy.
- Ted for the Capitol One Bowl, Badgers cleaned off Arkansas; he also has 2 tickets to Man of LaMancha on 2/17; donation to club gets you the tickets!
- Betsy had a 2 week vacation in Phoenix and LA; her company received the Best Decor Award by Wisconsin Meetings Magazine.
- Jon Lowry moved his son.
- Jesse is glad to be back.
- Bruce is happy the Gators beat Ohio State!

Roses Ted reported that he talked to Holly Felly at The Flower Market about the roses not lasting more than a few days; he just wanted her to know; she said she will make our next sale right.
